

Principles of Safety Leadership: Advanced OSHA Management Course

A New Program Exclusive to the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce

June 26-27, 2003

Radisson Plaza Hotel
Lexington, Kentucky

Introduction

This two-day workshop is designed to expand your safety knowledge, assist you in developing safety leadership skills and help you put what you know about safety to work for you and your company. Safety and management personnel who are versed in OSHA regulations and have a general understanding of compliance issues will discover that this interactive workshop includes the safety leadership skills needed to create and maintain a leading-edge safety program.

The nation's top business performers know how to work within their company's culture to achieve goals, understand the financial benefits of effective safety management and capitalize on their employees' participation in safety. This workshop will help you get past the basics of a safety program and on to those elements that affect your bottom line, improve your company's safety performance and expand your personal leadership skills.

Come prepared to work - this is a "workshop." Participant involvement is crucial to the learning process.

If your business is interested in moving beyond safety compliance and on to "best practices in safety," this workshop is a must! If you are interested in OSHA Voluntary Protection Plans (VPP) or are already a candidate, this two-day workshop will be invaluable to this process.
